Arthur's Christmas Adventure

Once upon a time there was a tiny old hut in the cold mountains of Norway. Inside the hut lived a poor father named Thomas and his happy son, Arthur. The father and son had very little money, but they had one thing and that was happiness.

Thomas spends all his time making wooden toys and sells them on the Christmas market that was in the nearest village. Arthur always got one thing for Christmas and that was a chocolate bar and a beautiful wooden toy. On the long way home from work the dad found two franks, he then decided to buy his son an early Christmas present.

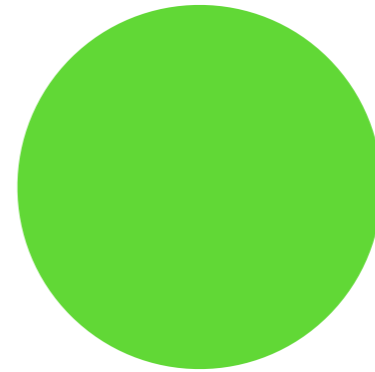

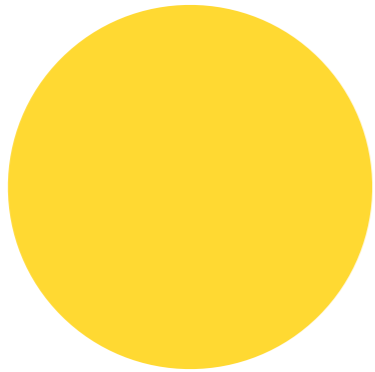

Arthur wakes up one morning and has a good idea. He wanted to see Santa Claus, he jumped out of bed, he tells Thomas that he wants to see Santa and that he would go searching for him today. The dad answered with a sleepy voice `` have fun`` he snaps and realizes that his son wants to go across the sea. He jumps out of his chair and runs out of the little hut, but it was too late, Arthur was already gone.

It was very early in the morning and the sun was first beginning to come up, the snow was glittering and there was a cold breeze. He was very happy and took out his compass and looked what way north was and went that way. He keeps going day and night and after three days he arrives at Greenland, after another four hours of traveling he arrives at Santa's headquarters.

It was very early in the morning and the sun was first beginning to come up, the snow was glittering and there was a cold breeze. He followed the path to the town. When he finally arrived at the town, he went directly to the train station, he bought a train ticket with all his money. After 2 days he arrives at Santa's headquarters.

Arthur wakes up one early morning and decides to go to the town with his friend. He jumps out of his bed and tells his dad. He runs to his friend named Timothy's house and tells him his plans. He was also allowed to come to the town. They jump on Arthur's sled and begins to ride to the town. They finally arrive to the town. A man runs over to them and offers them a train ticket for very cheap money, they accept his offer without knowing where their train is going.

They jump on the train and fall asleep very fast; in fact, they were so tired that they slept through the entire cold night without even waking up once. They finally woke up and realized they were going to the North Pole. They jump of the train of the train, it was dark as coal, they couldn't see anything. They walked for what seemed like half an hour, suddenly they saw a light, they kept walking for the light. They finally arrived there and found out it was Santa's Headquarters.

They jump on the train and fall asleep very fast; in fact, they were so tired that they slept through the entire cold night without even waking up once. But suddenly a man started yelling at them and screaming that they must get off at that exact moment. They jump off the train not knowing where they were they simply just kept walking on the train's track they kept walking for what felt like a day or so, but then they saw a light they decided to go to the light. After an hour they arrived and found out that it was Santa's Headquarters.

They walked into the big building, they opened the big old wooden door, when they opened the door, a small elf greeted them. He was very surprised since they didn't have any visitors. They said that they want to see Santa and the elf couldn't stop them. They walk through another big door, and they see Santa writing in a book. Santa was also very surprised that they arrived, he said "I've been waiting for you two I have seen how far you have traveled and I have decided to grant both of you one wish" Timothy goes first and said "I wish for all the Christmas present I want" Santa said "wish granted" Arthur on the other hand wished for something different he wished for "I want my mom back and that me and Timothy get back to both of our houses" Arthur wakes up one morning and thought that was a really weird dream, he goes out of his room to see his mother sitting right there on the chair.

The End
